History of Cumberland Falls State Resort Park

Established on August 21, 1931

Geologists estimate that the rock over which the Cumberland River plunges is about 250 million years old. Romantics are enchanted with the poetic beauty of the falls. Visitors are awed by the majesty of the falls. Historians note the uniqueness of the site. Often called the "Niagara of the South," Cumberland Falls has attracted the attention of countless people since prehistoric times. The first official record of the falls ownership occurred in 1800 when the Commonwealth of Kentucky granted Matthew Walton and Adam Shepard Cumberland Falls and 200 acres. In 1850, Louis and Mary H. Renfro bought 400 acres "including the Great Falls of the Cumberland." The couple built a cabin near the falls and later added a two-room lean-to for visitors who wished to fish and enjoy the beauty of the magnificent waterfall.

Socrates Owens constructed a hotel at the falls. Handmade furniture filled the rooms of the hotel. When Owens died in 1890, his widow, Nannie William Owens and his son, Edward F. Owens took possession of the Cumberland Falls Hotel. The Owens family later sold the hotel and 400 acres to the Cumberland Falls Company who then sold it to J.C. Brunson who renamed the hotel the Brunson Inn.

In 1927 the Kiwanis Club sponsored the building of a trail from Corbin, Kentucky to Cumberland Falls. In November 1927 Kentucky native, T. Coleman DuPont offered to buy the falls and the surrounding acreage and give it to the commonwealth for a state park. However, not until March 10, 1930 did the Kentucky legislature vote to accept the now deceased Coleman's offer of the falls area as a state park. Coleman's widow proceeded to buy the property for $400,000. Under the direction of Dr. Willard Rouse Jilison who had served as the first commissioner of state parks, a committee adopted a motion to make Cumberland Falls part of the state parks system. The dedication of Cumberland Falls as a Kentucky State Park took place at 1:30 pm, August 21, 1931.

In 1933 the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) had 136 young men working at the falls to improve the park. They constructed DuPont Lodge and fifteen cabins for visitors, along with campsites, picnic areas, roads and trails. The lodge had 26 rooms with a lounge two-stories high complete with a huge stone fireplace. A fire destroyed DuPont Lodge on April 5, 1940. Park authorities constructed a new lodge in 1941. Throughout the remainder of the twentieth century, the Kentucky parks system carried out extensive improvements.

All types of seasonal recreational activities take place at the park. However, the greatest attraction is the thundering waters of Cumberland Falls. The falls is 65 feet high and is 125 feet in width. When the Cumberland River is at flood stage the width of the falls can quickly expand to 300 feet. Also located at the falls is the gift shop and visitors center.

Besides the falls, one of the great attractions at Cumberland Falls State Park is the Moonbow. Visible on moonlit evenings, the moonbow is said to only be duplicated at Victoria Falls in Africa. The beauty of Cumberland Falls draws visitors from across the world to come to Kentucky to see its grandeur.
